

About Us

I recently returned to my hometown in the Languedoc region after travelling the world for over 12 years. I decided to create Explore Languedoc so that I can bring people to the places I like and that, in my opinion, make the area special. Tours and packages offered by Explore Languedoc combine the best of the region; vibrant markets, historical villages, vineyards and extraordinary landscapes.

I believe that my extensive travel experiences around the world and my passion for authentic travel are assets when creating tours that immerse visitors into the local culture. My perspective as a fellow traveller has influenced the focus of Explore Languedoc and my knowledge as a Languedoc native has enabled the fine-tuning of a unique and memorable travel experience.

Welcome

The Languedoc in the South of France is a region of incredible diversity and heritage. It boasts stunning landscapes, cultural richness, historical significance and an abundance of Mediterranean sunshine. Good food and good wine are considered an essential part of everyday life

Beautiful and diverse landscapes make for memorable adventures in the Languedoc; there is a new and impressive scene around every corner. Rivers, canyons, gorges, foothills, mountains, lakes, rock formations, caves, lagoons and beaches are abundant in this part of France and provide endless sightseeing and outdoor recreation opportunities.

Along with a captivating history, the area has a charming culture with deeply rooted Mediterranean traditions.

Wine is central within the Languedoc and the area today is well known for its wine-production.

Compared to overrated Provence, the Languedoc feels more genuine. It is a destination where you will enjoy and discover a truly unique French culture.

To the greatest extent possible, Explore Languedoc strives to support locally-run businesses and initiatives through its tours. It is hoped that by bringing visitors to attractions outside of the main tourist destinations that Explore Languedoc will have a widespread positive impact on local economies.

Culture & Heritage Tours

From sea to mountains, different civilizations have left behind traces of their existence in what is now known as the Languedoc region.

The region is awash with visual reminders of a fascinating history, which visitors can easily discover and explore. The most obvious historical remnants in the Languedoc are from the Roman times, as the area was utilized as a strategic border and a main route of passage between Spain and Italy.

Various UNESCO World Heritage Sites in the Languedoc, including the Canal du Midi and the fortified city of Carcassonne, recognize the area's historical heritage and are popular destinations amongst visitors.

With a local guide, enjoy sightseeing and cultural immersion through day trips or bespoke excursions that combine the best of the Languedoc region.

Guests benefit from small group sizes and our flexible approach.

Discover the region at a pace that works for you while honouring your individual needs and interests.

Join us for an authentic Languedoc adventure!

Vineyard Tours

As the Languedoc's sunny climate is ideal for growing grapes, the area has long been associated with wine-production.

The Languedoc vineyards are the oldest in France as wine-making began here in the 5th Century (BC).

With vines covering over 283 000 hectares, the Languedoc is the single biggest wine producing region in the world.

Today, more than 85% of the vineyards are under regional Languedoc AOC appellation where each is characterized by its unique terroir.

Discover the natural beauty of this wine-producing region as you travel through the landscape on quiet country roads.

Explore Languedoc offers the opportunity for visitors to discover Languedoc wines through authentic wine tours in the Faugeres, Minervois, Saint Chinian, La Clape and other known appellations.

A local and passionate guide will take you to meet the winemakers, where in your small group you will learn all about the making of Languedoc wines and enjoy a memorable wine tasting experience.

Package Holidays

From all inclusive luxury hotel barge cruises on the Canal du Midi to hand-picked self-catering bed and breakfasts or magnificent Châteaux, we can organize that perfect southern France holiday for you.
